

I am very concerned about the possibility that the FCC will loosen its restrictions on ownership of media, allowing a few very large firms to dominate the flow of information to the citizens of this country. I am also very concerned about the highly secretive and undemocratic way that the FCC (presumably under White House direction) is trying to push through this change. There is clearly a great deal of concern with this change, and the FCC needs to allow the greatest possible public discussion. Once such changes are made, the result will be a serious restriction of open debate on crucial public issues -- which in particular will make it even harder to reverse this decision later on!
